Advanced Prompting Techniques

- Different prompting techniques to make the AI/LLM output to sound more clear, concise and accurate.
- Prompting
  - Chain of thought
  - Persona Prompting
  - Self Review Loop
  - XML Tag
- Kind of technique used.

Chain of Thought Prompting

- We will give a set of examples and make the AI model think in a particular way.
- Prompt : Analyze whether a starup should invest in AI automation, first identify the costs, then explain the benefits. then discuss the risks and finally give me a recommendation.

Persona Prompting

You will assign a role to claude and forces it to generate the answer from the perspective.

You are a cyber security expert teaching beginners explaining phishing attacks in simple language with real world examples.

Self Review Loop

Review the artcile you just wrote and identify the unclear sections, grammar mistakes and weak arguments, then improve the final version.

XML Tags

generate the response using this structure

- Summary
- In simple words
- Real life cases and examples
- Takeaway

Summary

- The module introduces advanced prompting techniques like chain-of-thought prompting, where Claude is instructed to think step by step before answering.
- Learners explore persona prompting, which involves assigning Claude a specific expert identify to improve response quality and specialization.
- The module explains the self-review loop, where claude critiques and improves its own output for better accuracy and clarity.
- It also introduces XML tags for generating cleaner, more structured, and organized outputs.